

WEEKLY NEWS BITES

Have Your Say and Help to Improve Our Support for Mental Health

We are working towards achieving the Leeds Beckett Carnegie Schools Mental Health Award. If you have any feedback on how we could improve our support, please email e.fisher@huddnewcoll.ac.uk

On Wednesday 10th April we will be hosting a debate with Professor Neil Humphrey around the topic of 'does social media have a negative impact on mental health?' More details will follow soon, but we will be looking for students to take part in this important debate!

Half-term

College will close for half term this Friday 15th February. We will reopen Monday 25th February.

We hope that you have a restful and enjoyable break!

Exam Information

Please take a look at the recently updated exams guide. The guide contains a range of essential information, including about social media and how the exam boards use your personal data. It can be downloaded here: <https://huddnewcoll.ac.uk/student-life/exams>

Contingency Day

Wednesday 26th June 2019 is an exam contingency day. The boards reserve the right to move an exam to here

Time to Revise

Our Time to Revise package provides a range of support for you during the busy exam period. Our 2019 programme will run from 4th March and include a range of activities such as yoga and meditation sessions and free fruit and cereal bars on busy exam days.

The programme is designed to support your well being during the exam season and help you to succeed. This year the programme will also include a guest speaker who will share a range of memory techniques, and our popular tea and chat sessions.

Full details about the programme of support will be released on your return from the holidays!

