

Experience life as a university student - open to all!

On Monday 1 July you will have the opportunity to join a special day at the University of Huddersfield which will allow you to experience life as a university student and explore potential degree and career options in more depth.

Bookings are now live, and the aim of the day is to enable all Year 12 students to gain a real flavour of student life at this critical point in their journey. Therefore there is no requirement to specifically be considering the University of Huddersfield as a potential option, as the day is about bringing to life the experience and providing a genuine look at what you can expect. It is therefore also ideal if you are still considering if university is for you.

You can book your space here:

For this event, you will choose one subject based session and then opt for a campus tour or interactive talk from a current student who will share more about their higher education experience.

It is a really valuable opportunity to spend dedicated time exploring the university option, and attendance is recommended. Naturally, your absence to attend this event will be authorised, as members of staff will join the day to register you at the event.

BECOME YOUR BEST SELVES

Here at HNC we offer you an experience that helps you to become your best self! Part of achieving this is pushing yourself out of your usual comfort zone, and trying something new. We're recently been asking our staff to share a recommend read, watch or listen for something that has inspired them to broaden their horizons as they become their best selves. Kicking off the series is Principal Marcus, who is sharing his recommended read of Ego is the Enemy by Ryan Holiday. Marcus says:

"In a society where many people think that ego is vital to success, the author argues that an unchecked ego will in fact lead to our downfall. Ryan Holiday makes the case that being humble, self-reflective, and accountable for our choices are the key ingredients of a happy, successful life. As with everything, don't take my word for it, read the book and see what you think!"

Feel free to share your personal recommended reads by emailing news@huddnewcoll.ac.uk
